

Non-executive

Beef up your board

Businesses at all stages of development, from startups to global PLCs can benefit from the appointment of an experienced Non-executive Director.

Non-executive Directors can add value in the following ways:

- Strengthen the board with an outside viewpoint, giving an independent and unbiased sounding board to the executive team.
- Challenging and enhancing the company's growth strategy.
- Bringing on board particular skills or connections in new markets.
- Improving credibility with investors, customers and suppliers.
- Monitoring goals and objectives.
- Determining executive remuneration.
- Assistance with negotiations and conflicts.

We believe that a good non-executive does a lot more than turn up for board meetings and sign the minutes. We can bring to your company the benefits of many years of commercial success in a technology and media environment.

Whether placed by the executive team or an incoming investor, a Heldhand Non-executive Director can help to transform your business.